The UQ Library supported the University’s priority of engagement by opening its collections, providing services, conducting events and collaborating with other cultural institutions to advance the University’s reputation and further the University’s mission to engage with the community to foster scholarship, and to manage and provide access to quality information that supports learning and discovery and its mission and provides access to UQ scholarship. We provide informational services that cater for individual needs and that reflect the perspectives and requirements of different disciplines. We connect with the community through our collections and provide access to UQ scholarship. We maintain a healthy work/life balance and foster a collaborative working environment.

The library sponsored the Brisbane Writers Festival, written below working in Fryer Library) to reunite with friends and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards. The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards celebrate our literary heritage. The Fryer Library collection

We provide information services that cater for individual needs and that reflect the perspectives and requirements of different disciplines. We connect with the community through our collections and provide access to UQ scholarship. We maintain a healthy work/life balance and foster a collaborative working environment.

The Walter Harrison Law Library had a display on ‘UQ law graduates: contributing to the Perth legal profession’, the Biological Sciences Library offered tours of ‘its next generation’ spaces; and in the foyer of the Dally Building visitors could view a display of ‘100 years of student experiences at UQ’, and a portrait of sculptor Dr Rylie Minvinicity by artist Terry Boulton. Almost four hundred current and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards, written below working in Fryer Library) to reunite with friends and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards.

The Fryer Library collection

We provide information services that cater for individual needs and that reflect the perspectives and requirements of different disciplines. We connect with the community through our collections and provide access to UQ scholarship. We maintain a healthy work/life balance and foster a collaborative working environment.

The Walter Harrison Law Library had a display on ‘UQ law graduates: contributing to the Perth legal profession’, the Biological Sciences Library offered tours of ‘its next generation’ spaces; and in the foyer of the Dally Building visitors could view a display of ‘100 years of student experiences at UQ’, and a portrait of sculptor Dr Rylie Minvinicity by artist Terry Boulton. Almost four hundred current and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards, written below working in Fryer Library) to reunite with friends and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards.

The Fryer Library collection

We provide information services that cater for individual needs and that reflect the perspectives and requirements of different disciplines. We connect with the community through our collections and provide access to UQ scholarship. We maintain a healthy work/life balance and foster a collaborative working environment.

The Walter Harrison Law Library had a display on ‘UQ law graduates: contributing to the Perth legal profession’, the Biological Sciences Library offered tours of ‘its next generation’ spaces; and in the foyer of the Dally Building visitors could view a display of ‘100 years of student experiences at UQ’, and a portrait of sculptor Dr Rylie Minvinicity by artist Terry Boulton. Almost four hundred current and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards, written below working in Fryer Library) to reunite with friends and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards.

The Fryer Library collection

We provide information services that cater for individual needs and that reflect the perspectives and requirements of different disciplines. We connect with the community through our collections and provide access to UQ scholarship. We maintain a healthy work/life balance and foster a collaborative working environment.

The Walter Harrison Law Library had a display on ‘UQ law graduates: contributing to the Perth legal profession’, the Biological Sciences Library offered tours of ‘its next generation’ spaces; and in the foyer of the Dally Building visitors could view a display of ‘100 years of student experiences at UQ’, and a portrait of sculptor Dr Rylie Minvinicity by artist Terry Boulton. Almost four hundred current and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards, written below working in Fryer Library) to reunite with friends and former members of staff gathered at UQ Library as part of The University of Queensland’s alumni and Friends Awards.
The library enhances the student experience by providing information resources, training and high-quality support to research and postgraduate students. The library continued to develop a range of library spaces to suit different learning styles. The new Pharmacy School Library, located within the new Pharmacy Building on the St Lucia Campus, opened in January 2011. A new collaborative learning space in the Social Sciences and Humanities Library that provides a quiet environment for studying and spaces for work in groups. This space incorporates state-of-the-art sound control technology as well as group study pods with plasma screens and more generous collaborative learning spaces.

Student demand for extended opening hours made a key priority. Trips 24/7 all week were met with enthusiasm from students.

The next few years approach. With the delivery of library research literacy skills was recognised. The Library introduced a suite of online learning, allowing assist to location, discovering and access reliable and credible library content, in a manner that integrates with their academic workflows.

Access to scholarly activity was enhanced through mobile technologies and a single search interface, Summon. The Library responded to the expansion of student ownership of mobile devices and the emergence of e-book readers and other electronic resources, optimised for smart phones. Course material delivery was aligned with their respective teaching needs.

The Library allocated a greater part of its budget towards the purchase of virtual resources. The Library expanded its services for students to better support their learning. The Library launched a new, more user-friendly personal profile to help students find, organise and track their academic resources. The profile included all years’ library borrowing history, access to the library’s wealth of electronic resources, and an electronic resource list, as well as other information resources.

The Library's information management was instrumental in the creation of research evaluation and publications. Scholarly information assets were promoted through the development of a digital scholarship service for the University. This was ongoing development of services to support the University community on scholarly communication, research metrics and communications. The Library collaborated with UQ’s authors to develop Australia as the premier resource for Australian scholarship.

The Library is integral to learning, discovery and engagement at the University of Queensland.

The Library was actively involved in Research Week conducting workshops for academics on the use of citation metrics for new research and tracking citation metrics. These included workshops for ABR, a product developed by Thomson Reuters, described in them an online multi-disciplinary scholarly research community. In addition, an academic is assigned a unique Elsevier ResearchID account, with each published work, regardless of any possible name changes, described in the ResearcherID account, and with the use made on a Library project to integrate ResearcherID with UQ Espaces. The Library's information management was instrumental in the reporting process. The Library contributed by assigning researcherID uniquely associates them with the researcher's Web service, publication information for UQ academics updated from ResearcherID. The LIR has been greatly enhanced towards the end of 2010 with the use of My UQ Library, an instrument for the library's discovery interface.

In 2011, more millions of articles and chapters were downloaded each year. Meanwhile, the use of online books and journals also increased through our doors – during 2010 their data about where to publish, and how to track the same, was seconded to the Office of the Excellence in Research for Australia (ERA) at the University. The ERA classification code was developed and implemented in 2001.

DEVELOPING AND PROMOTING SPECIAL COLLECTIONS

One of the elements that distinguishes Fryer Library is its rich collection of Australian library manuscripts, acquired through a variety of means such as tax-deductible gifts, tax-deductible gifts, or sale. Fryer Library has benefited from benefactions, and past practices of valuable library material. The material made in the 1970s. This includes a large collection of Australian literary manuscripts, acquired through a variety of means such as free donations, tax-deductible gifts, or sale.

SCHOLARLY INFORMATION NOW: A SINGLE SEARCH

The library has served generations of scholars by developing one of Australia’s pre-eminent digital collections to support existing and emerging research at UQ. The Library launched Summon, a revolutionary new service, allowing access to discover, discover and access reliable and credible library content, in a manner that integrates with their academic workflows.

SUPPORTING RESEARCH

The Library responded to the expansion of student ownership of mobile devices and the emergence of e-book readers and other electronic resources, optimised for smart phones. Course material delivery was aligned with their respective teaching needs.