Referencing guides

- Academic Integrity is taken very seriously by the University
- You will need to reference the sources you draw on in your assignment following a particular style
- Check which referencing style is prescribed for your course on Learn.UQ (Blackboard) or your assignment task sheet
- Then find the referencing guide on the Library's website

The screenshot shows the Library website's 'Referencing style guides' page. It includes a navigation menu at the top with links for 'Study', 'Research', 'Partners and community', and 'About'. The main content area is titled 'Referencing style guides' and 'Referencing styles at UQ'. It provides a definition of a referencing style and a section titled 'Which referencing style should I use?' with a bulleted list of considerations. Below this is a table of guides and information. To the right, there are two dashed boxes: 'Referencing specific formats' with a list of links for ChatGPT, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander referencing, and Manuscripts from the Fryer Library; and 'Referencing software' with a link to EndNote software and a list of links for a guide and other information.

Referencing style guides

Referencing styles at UQ

A referencing style is a set of rules on how to acknowledge the thoughts, ideas and works of others in a particular way. Referencing is a crucial part of successful academic writing, avoiding plagiarism and maintaining academic integrity in your assignments and research. Watch an Introduction to referencing \(YouTube, 3m43s\).

Which referencing style should I use?

- Check your course profile or ask your lecturer what style you should use
- Some schools or disciplines use a standard style but it is still possible your lecturer may require a different style
- There is no standard style used across UQ
- Researchers submitting a paper for publication in a journal should check the journal's Instructions for Authors, which will normally be available on the journal's website

The guides include examples of reference lists and how to cite different formats.

Guides and information	Full name	About the style
ACS	American Chemical Society	Widely used in chemistry and related disciplines.
AGLC (4th edition)	Australian Guide to Legal Citation	The standard Australian guide for referencing in law.
APA (7th edition) APA (6th edition)	American Psychological Association	The standard style used in psychology, but it is also widely used in other disciplines, especially in the social sciences.
Chicago (17th edition) notes and bibliography Chicago (17th edition) Author-Date	Chicago Manual of Style	The Chicago Manual's footnote referencing system is widely used in the arts and humanities.

Additional referencing information

Referencing specific formats

Suggestions for citing these formats, if there is not an existing rule in your referencing style:

- ChatGPT and other Generative AI tools:
 - Check whether you are permitted to use ChatGPT or other Generative Artificial Intelligence (AI) tools prior to commencing your assignment.
 - If you use content from AI tools you must reference it or acknowledge it in accordance with course coordinator instructions or publisher policies.
- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander referencing
- Manuscripts from the Fryer Library
- Code in your assignments
- Datasets

Referencing software

EndNote referencing software is available for UQ students and staff to help automate your referencing. We have:

- a guide on how to use EndNote
- information on other referencing software.

EndNote has subject styles for a variety of disciplines.
